

AOSR AI Webinar_May 14, 2022

Information from AOSR (As of 2022.5.11)

Dear President/Secretariat of member societies,

The ET committee in collaboration with the Education Committee has organised the following webinar with topics focussed on AI & Research.

Mark your Calendar for 14th May 2022, 2.30pm, GMT+8

1. What are the potential topics of AI research in Radiology?

Dr Vidur Mahajan from India.

CEO & Head (R & D)

Centre for Advanced Research in Imaging, Neurosciences Genomics (CARING)

Mahajan Imaging

He is part of the multifaceted team at CARPL.ai- an end to end medical imaging platform.

2. How to understand a paper in AI research?

Dr Daniel Ting from Singapore

He is a highly cited Ophthalmologist, Associate Professor at Singapore National Eye Centre who is an international expert on AI in healthcare. He was the founding member of the American Academy Ophthalmology (AAO) AI task force committee. He is associate Editor of Nature Digital Medicine

3. What are the steps involved in an AI research project? Dr Chang-Min Park from South Korea

He is Associate Professor in Diagnostic Radiology at Seoul National University. He serves as the Korean Society of Radiology Artificial Intelligence-in-charge. He is deeply interested in Medical Artificial Intelligence and its application in Radiology practice

A panel discussion will follow where you can post questions live to the speakers.

Register at <https://aosr.vidocto.com>

See you online on the 14th May, 2022!

Yours sincerely,

Evelyn

Dr Evelyn Ho

Consultant Clinical Radiologist, ParkCity Medical Centre

President, Asian Oceanian Society of Radiology:

REACHING OUT, GROWING ASIA-OCEANIA

Chair, RSNA Regional Committee for Asia Oceania