

Information from ISR Office (As of 11 OCT 2022)

Recording of ISR-WFUMB-WHO webinar available free of charge

I am writing to you on behalf of the International Society of Radiology (ISR) to inform you about a special opportunity that I believe will be of value for your society members.

As you may have read, the ISR, jointly with the World Federation for Ultrasound in Medicine and Biology (WFUMB) and the World Health Organization (WHO), organized a Webinar on Safer Maternal and Newborn Care – the Role of Ultrasound on 14 September.

The webinar was held on the occasion of World Patient Safety Day \(WPSD\), which is celebrated yearly on 17 September and this time focused on safety in maternal and newborn care. As you can see from the program, the webinar gathered high-level speakers not only from the host organizations, but also from radiological technology and midwifery, among others, and paid attention to different settings.

It is my particular pleasure to inform you that the recording of the webinar is available free of charge here.

I believe that this is an extremely valuable source for the radiological community and our partner disciplines, which has also been confirmed by the positive feedback from live and on-demand viewers.

Offering this webinar for free is part of the ISR's mission to promote global radiological quality and safety and to bring high quality radiological education, especially to underserved areas, which is only possible thanks to the support from our member societies.

Sincerely,

Renato A. Mendonça

ISR President
